

GRAVITY FIELDS FESTIVAL

26 – 30 September 2018

Voyage of Discovery

Sponsorship Opportunities

Gravity Fields Festival is a festival of science, arts, heritage, music, drama and outdoor spectacular in and around Grantham to celebrate Sir Isaac Newton's legacy.

Gravity Fields, organised by South Kesteven District Council, takes place in and around Grantham every two years and celebrates the area's connections with Newton, who was born and brought up at Woolsthorpe and educated at the town's King's School.

The inaugural festival in 2012 set a high bar in terms of quality and the sheer range of speakers, entertainment and outdoor arts on the programme, a winning mix of science, arts, heritage, music, drama and community involvement which has now grown an established audience.

Festivals in 2014 and 2016 have not only delivered the same high standards but have firmly established Gravity Fields on the national calendar, boosted by its high calibre of patronage and its proven ability to deliver a high quality event. Grantham's third Gravity Fields Festival scored another major success, attracting tens of thousands of people to events and with Grantham's now traditional stunning Saturday evening outdoor arts transformation.

Glowing praise came from festival patron Professor Val Gibson, Head of High Energy Physics at the University of Cambridge, who said: "Our Gravity Fields Festival is head and shoulders above any other arts and science festival in the UK, particularly because it involves so much of the community."
